Disputable Core Concepts of Narrative Theory

Göran Rossholm & Christer Johansson (eds)
Contents

Introduction ........................................................................................................... 7

STEN WISTRAND
Time for Departure? The Principle of Minimal Departure – a Critical Examination ...................................................................................... 15

STAFFAN CARLSHAMRE
Is There Ever a Happy Ending? ................................................................. 45

LEIF SONDERGAARD
Fictional and Factual Discourses in Narratives – and the Grey Zone Between ........................................................................ 57

MARI HATAVARA
Contested History, Denied Past. The Narrator’s Failure in Ralf Nordgren’s Det har aldrig hänt (1977) .............................................. 83

PER KROGH HANSEN
Formalizing the Study of Character:
Traits, Profiles, Possibilities ......................................................................... 99

LARS-ÅKE SKALIN
Reading Literary Characters: Is There
a Knowing the Dancer from the Dance? .................................................. 119

MARINA GRISHAKOVA
The Voices of Madness: Performativity and Narrative Identity ...... 131

CHRISTER JOHANSSON
Telling and Showing: A Semiotic Perspective ............................................. 147

GÖRAN ROSSHOLM
Narrative as Story Representation .............................................................. 183
JEREMY HAWTHORN
Philip Roth’s Exit Ghost, Joseph Conrad’s The Shadow-Line, and the Ethical Implications of Narrative Occasion .................... 201

PEKKA TAMMI
OTHIN RONG WIT HE UBTITLES.
Remarks on Unreliability in Fiction and Non-Fiction ............... 221

ROLF GAASLAND
Practical Reasoning Demarcated. Unreliable Narration in Franz Kafka’s “Erstes Leid” ................................................................. 239

ANNIKEN GREVE
Form, Sense and Nonsense. With Examples from Wittgenstein and Kafka ................................................................. 253

ERIK VAN OIJEN
Notes on the Conceptualization of Style as Embodied Idiolect in French Structuralism ................................................. 269

GREGER ANDERSSON
Is There a Narrative Method of Text Analysis and Interpretation? .................................................................................. 279

JAKOB LOTHE
Verbal Narrative and Visual Image: Trains and Railways in W.G. Sebald’s “Paul Bereyter” and Austerlitz .............................. 307

MATTI HYVÄRINEN
“Against Narrativity” Reconsidered ........................................ 327

MARKKU LEHTIMÄKI
Imagist Narrative: The Everyday and the Aesthetic in Hemingway’s Fiction .............................................................. 347

Index ....................................................................................... 373

The Authors............................................................................. 381